About UHF Journey

The United Hamster Front concept has been created by the author in 2007- as a joke.

You can scan the QR-Code on the cover to reach the associated website, read the history, and see older material- including the “Ode to Great Hamster”.

UHF Journey, started in 2026, is a not-so-serious take on human affairs.

Each issue is focused on single theme, summarized by the word on the cover, and each team member contributes his own perspective to a specific issue discussed in that issue, along with a preliminary and summarizing team perspective.

All the texts in each issue are written by the author.

All the base Hamster characters have been AI-generated with instructions from the author, and modified by the author to align with the design he had in mind.

Each page in this magazine containing images therefore can be considered a collaboration between the author and AIs, but designed, modified, composed by the author.

INTRODUCING

This first issue of "UHF Journey" is presented as an appendix to a mini-book.

Specifically, a mini-book discussing guidelines for "citizen auditors".

You probably can see on many magazines and online invitations to join panels of "experts".

This is not what defined as "citizen auditor".

The concept is based on a simple consideration: our modern societies are complex.

And since at least WWII we expanded the number of "vertical" experts focused just on even a tiny slice of a domain.

Then, their expertise often ended up into regulatory frameworks- as assumptions.

Resulting in something that, to evolve, would need to understand that background, who was involved, how, and how the "designing a horse by committee" resulted in the typical camel that is a regulation: a consensus, not a choice.

Decrypting reality therefore often requires more than what any human, no matter how expert, can grasp.

Hence, the "citizen audit" concept- as a swarm, temporarily assembling and converging on a purpose- a swarm were leadership is based on need, not on career-building.

As described within the "About UHF Journey", the H-Team is a joke that created in 2007 and had a nice following back then- few hundred people.

You can find more about the development history of the "citizen audit" through my business experience since the 1980s working as a "bridge" between experts and non-experts, and, when needed, also as an expert in specific domains- scan the QR-code.

And you are welcome to integrate the concepts (CC-BY-SA-4.0) within your own activities.

Stay tuned!

The H-Team

Each Hamster team has no permanent leader- it is purpose-oriented.

Who are the H-Team members?

Architect, facilitator, logistics, specialist, enthusiast: these are nicknames outlining each role.

The architect

from concept to plan, to idea and opportunity spotting, involving those needed when needed

The facilitator

removing roadblocks and looking ahead to help the other team members exceed their potential

The logistics

taking care of resource, procurement, preparations, and phasing-out at the end, and also the supply chaing of knowledge before, during, and after each initiative

The specialist

a concept more than a role, as many specialists could be required on each initiative or crisis

The enthusiast

ensures that all the team members are aware of the status, and takes care of the continuous communication with stakeholders, involving other team members if and when needed to provide focused information
